What did Eaton just announce?

An agreement to acquire Cooper Industries, creating a combined enterprise that would have had $21.5 billion sales in 2011

Will become part of Eaton's electrical business

The new company will be formed via a legal process similar to a merger and will be incorporated in Ireland

Executives and functions will remain based in their present locations

Plan to deliver $535 million in annual synergies

Eaton announced it has reached agreement to acquire Cooper Industries. This is the largest acquisition in our history. Together with Cooper, we would have had combined 2011 sales of an estimated $21.5 billion.

After the acquisition is completed, Cooper will become part of Eaton's electrical business, led by Tom Gross.

The acquisition will be accomplished via a form of Irish legal process, similar to a merger. Cooper is currently an Irish incorporated company and, as a result of the legal processes in Ireland and the U.S., Cooper and Eaton will be combined in a company incorporated in Ireland.

Preliminary

plans,

still

subject

to government

approval,

are

for

the company

to

be known

as

Eaton

Global

Corporation

plc.

Our

will continue

trade

on

New

York

Stock

Exchange

ETN.

The change of our place of incorporation to Ireland will have virtually no impact on our employees. Executives and corporate functions will remain based in their present locations.

Putting the two companies together will result in over $500 million in annual synergies.

Benefits of Acquiring Cooper Industries

Broader electrical solutions for our customers and channel partners

Moving Eaton upstream into utility distribution, grid automation and smart grid and downstream into lighting, lighting controls and wiring devices

Wider base for our service business

Complementary geographic strengths

Creates an enterprise increasingly well positioned for growth through addressing global power management needs

Beyond just making Eaton quite a bit larger, there are a lot of strategic benefits and opportunities. These stem from the fact that our Electrical Sector and Cooper have very complementary products. Together they create a broader electrical solution for our customers.

If
you think
about electricity
a long chain
of equipment
from
the power plant
to
the light
bulb,
you
can think
of Eaton's
current electrical business as playing in the middle.
Cooper
stretches
that position
in both directions.
First,
it
moves
us upstream because Cooper
is a leading supplier
to Electrical

Utilities.
Second,
it
stretches
us
downstream because Cooper
is also
leader
in lighting,
lighting
controls,
and
the final products
you plug into generally known as wiring devices.

Having a bigger solution means having a bigger opportunity to provide services, and one of the benefits we anticipate is increased our service business considerably.

And finally, we have very complementary geographic strengths. This will allow us to leverage ourselves in key markets outside USA.

So
good way
to think
about
the benefits
is that
it
accelerates
the strategy
we've had
in place
for quite a while we are creating an enterprise

that
is very well positioned
for growth through addressing
power
management
needs.

Like Eaton, Cooper Industries has been in the process of diversifying their end-market and geographic mix. From an end market perspective, a larger percentage of their business is sold to electric utilities. This was attractive to us. Like us, they also have a successful position in industrial and commercial markets, although they achieve that position with different products. That was also attractive to us. They have a somewhat higher concentration of their total business in the U.S. than Eaton does. Having said that, they have focused heavily on globalizing their business over the past several years and have been able to achieve a total of 40% of their revenues to customers outside the U.S.

Cooper Industries has a terrific set of complementary products with very strong brands. They report their business by the two segments shown at the top of this slide.

Each is sizable as you can see.

Within these two segments are seven strong businesses and many strong brands:

Again, seven strong businesses with very strong positions and brands.

10

Cooper Power Systems is a market leader in grid protection and has $1.3 billion in sales. This business sells extensively to the electric utilities segment

One of their most famous brands is Crouse

Hinds.

It is a $1 billion manufacturer of enclosures and solutions for hazardous environments. Their customer base is big industry like Oil and Mining Safety, primarily a European business with $600 million in sales, is a leading provider of emergency systems such as lighting and video.

Lighting is a very powerful and broad business with $1.1 billion in sales. This business manufactures light fixtures for Industrial, Commercial,

and

Residential applications.

Recently

they have introduced

broad

line

of

energy-efficient

LED

fixtures

very promising for the future.

Bussman is another one of their strong brands. Bussman is a $650 million manufacturer of fuses and other devices that protect equipment and people.

B-Line is an interesting business that manufactures structures that manage wiring and cable. Doing this well is a big deal, particularly in industrial settings and in applications with a lot of wires such as data centers.

And finally, wiring devices. I'm sure you recognize these two pictures.

What happens next?

The deal is not yet complete and must go through approvals before being consummated. Expect closing in late Q3 or in Q4.

An integration team consisting of members from both companies will be formed and start its joint work at closing.

the interim, everything

is business
usual.

Eaton
employees should not contact Cooper
employees,
channels or customers.

Any media calls should be addressed to Don McGrath and investor calls should be addressed to Don Bullock.

I
said
in
the beginning,
the announcement
the agreement
to acquire Cooper
Industries
is very big
and exciting
news.
There
are a number of very important steps and some important things to remember.
First,
the
deal
is
not complete
and
we must
to
through various approvals
before
it
is.
So
keep
in mind
that
we
have
acquired them until it is complete.

integration
team
will
formed when
the deal
is completed,
made up
of
members
from
both companies.

This
is true
for all
Eaton
acquisitions.

the
interim,
is
usual.

We
are being asked
to
not speculate
too much
about what synergies
will exist.

Let s
give our integration team some time to do their work. Again, everything is business as usual until then.

Above all, we should not make contact of any type with Cooper employees, or any of their customers or channel partners.

the
event
media
call
being
made
to any
us
personally,
or
to
our
facility,
we
should
have
all
those calls
addressed
to Don
McGrath at World Headquarters.
Thanks for your time.
