Employee Video Script

Hi everyone, I'm David Jukes.

Today, we have made an incredibly exciting announcement – our agreement to acquire Nexeo Solutions. During the course of their short history since beginning operations in 2011, Nexeo has built an enviable position in chemicals and plastics distribution. Integrating our two companies will allow us the opportunity to build a global leader in chemical and ingredient distribution by combining the best of the best. This truly is a transformational deal full of exciting opportunities for the customers, suppliers, employees and investors in Univar and Nexeo.

This combination has many attractions; key amongst them is the opportunity to deliver even more value to our customers and supplier partners.

Together, we will have an enhanced presence in such segments as Personal Care, Home and Industrial Cleaning, and Local Chemical Distribution in the USA. It will also strengthen our presence in Canada and Mexico, and combine Univar's ChemCare with Nexeo's Environmental Services business to build critical mass in this attractive services segment. All of this translates to more growth and more opportunities for our people.

Over recent years, Nexeo has invested heavily in a state-of-the-art IT platform, and this deal will allow Univar to merge our leading digital tools onto an already established, modern, ERP platform. This approach reduces the risk of an immediate move from our DCS system in North America, and will accelerate our path to becoming the leading destination for digital commerce and content in our industry.

I realise that many of you will be as excited as I am about this announcement but will also naturally ask – what does this mean for me? Well for the moment, it's business as usual as both companies will remain independent until the regulatory approvals are obtained and the merger is closed. Until then, I expect each of you to continue improving our performance and growing as One Univar through Commercial Greatness and Operational Excellence. So for now then there is no change and no letting up. Keep selling high, wide and deep and watch for the five warning signals as competitors may think we're distracted and choose this moment to cause mischief with customers. Go out, call on customers. Sell, sell, sell. then sell some more!

After the merger closes, we will be one company and the hard work of successfully integrating these two businesses will begin in earnest. Ahead of that, there will be a considerable amount of planning that will need to take place. To ensure this is done thoroughly and properly, I am announcing two new, dedicated roles to lead the process. First, Jen McIntyre will step out of her global supply chain role to become Chief Integration Officer. In this role, Jen will be responsible to me for planning the successful integration of Univar and Nexeo, adhering to the guiding principle of becoming the most valued chemical and ingredient distributor in the world by combining the best of the best.

Secondly, managing such a complex project takes a very particular set of experience and skills, and I'm delighted to announce that in Steve Richards, we already have the right person on our team. Steve will take on the full time role as Director of the Integration Management Office, or IMO for short. All the work streams involved in the successful merger of the companies will be run by Steve's IMO. Soon, he and Jen will build out their integration planning teams, which will come from every corner of the Univar business, as well as from Nexeo's. More details to come as the plans are developed.

Between now and closing we will also carry out a comprehensive review of what the right strategy and approach is for the impressive Nexeo plastics business in North America, Europe and Asia. Outside of our small but highly successful Distrupol business in Northern Europe, Univar has not operated in polymer distribution. So establishing whether we are the best home for this industry leading business to maximize its undoubted potential is a very important question and one that this review will seek to answer. We expect to provide periodic and timely updates to all stakeholders as further information becomes available.

I'm sure over the coming days and weeks you will have many questions. We've already begun briefing your leaders, so feel free to ask questions to any member of the Global Leadership Team or use the AskDavid email address. In the meantime, I will tell you that I couldn't be more pleased by today's announcement and the opportunity it affords people in both companies to be part of something very special: combining the best of the best to build the most valued chemical and ingredient distributor in the world and the leading destination for digital commerce and content in our industry. You've heard me say before that it's a great time to be at Univar. Well the good times just got better!

Thanks for listening. Stay safe and keep selling the value of Univar.
