Lamperd Less Lethal Introduces New Pepper Spray Grenade

Advanced Design for Safe and Effective Crowd Control

SARNIA, ON--(Marketwired - September 27, 2016) - Lamperd Less Lethal, Inc. (OTC: LLLI) has developed a new type of grenade for very effective disbursement of pepper spray in crowd control and other dangerous situations. The Lamperd pepper spray grenade can be set to disburse either on the ground or in an air burst providing greater versatility of use. In both types of use, these grenades will forcefully release a painful but harmless pepper spray in a radius of 200 sq. ft. for a wide ranging effect on multiple persons. Another advantage of these NEW hand thrown grenades is that they weigh only 168 grams as opposed to 600 grams for competing types. This makes Lamperd grenades much easier to carry and throw. The lighter weight also makes Lamperd grenades more acceptable to both police and military logistical planners who are currently placing new emphasis on equipment weight reductions.

The new Lamperd pepper spray grenade is being made immediately available to all police departments and other users in any NATO country of the world. Lamperd management anticipates its pepper spray grenade will become a very useful tool in modern crowd control tactics and will help diffuse many dangerous situations before they can escalate into serious violence.
