Item 2. Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations

Management's Overview

During the 13 weeks ended June 27, 2004, all areas of Starbucks business, from domestic and international retail operations to the Company's specialty businesses, delivered strong financial performance, and innovation was prevalent throughout the Company's operations. Starbucks believes the Company's ability to achieve the balance between growing the core business and building the platform for future growth is the key to increasing shareholder value. Starbucks third quarter performance provides a strong example of the Company's commitment to this balance.

Historically, the primary driver of the Company's revenue growth has been the opening of new retail stores, both Company-operated and licensed, in pursuit of the Company's objective to establish Starbucks as the most recognized and respected brand in the world. With a presence today in more than 30 countries, management continues to believe that the Company's long term goal of operating at least 25,000 Starbucks retail locations throughout the United States and in International markets is achievable.

In addition to opening new retail stores, Starbucks is targeting to increase revenues generated at Company-operated stores open for 13 months or longer (comparable store sales growth) by 3-7% for the next three to five years by attracting new customers and increasing the frequency of visits by current customers. The strategy to achieve this target is to continuously improve the level of customer service, maintain a steady stream of product innovation and improve the speed of service through training, technology and process improvement. In the third quarter of fiscal 2004, comparable store sales in Company-operated markets increased by 11% as a result of these efforts. June 2004 marks the 150th consecutive month of positive comparable store sales growth for Starbucks, as well as the eighth consecutive month of double-digit growth, which is the longest period of double-digit comparable store sales growth reported for the Company in 10 years.

In licensed markets, Starbucks shares operating and store development experience to help licensees improve the profitability of existing stores and build new stores, which generated additional royalty income and product sales. The Company's strategy is to increase its equity stake as international markets develop.

The combination of more retail stores, higher revenues from existing stores, and growth in other business channels in both the United States and International segments resulted in a 27.2% increase in total net revenues in the third quarter of fiscal 2004 compared to the third quarter of fiscal 2003, which was above the Company's three to five year target of approximately 20%. Since additional retail stores can leverage existing support organizations and facilities, that infrastructure can be expanded more slowly than the rate of revenue growth and generate margin improvement. In the third quarter of fiscal 2004, operating income as a percentage of total net revenues increased to 11.7% from 10.2% in the comparable period of fiscal 2003, and net earnings increased by 43.5%, compared to the third quarter of fiscal 2003. Also contributing to these results was the fourth consecutive quarter of positive operating results from the Company's International operating segment.

Management believes that comparable store sales growth at the current level is not sustainable over the long term. However, management believes that new store development opportunities on a global basis are sufficient for the Company to maintain a high level of unit growth and that the execution of the current retail operating strategy can achieve 3-7% comparable store sales growth for the next three to five years. These revenue growth opportunities, coupled with continuous focus on controlling both operating and capital costs, should allow Starbucks to continue to modestly improve margins and achieve annual revenue growth of approximately 20% and annual earnings per share growth of 20-25% for this same three to five year period.
