Item 1.01. Entry into a Material Definitive Agreement

Item 8.01. Other Events.

On December 6, 2004, Lockheed Martin Corporation and The Bank of New York, as Trustee, entered into a First Supplemental Indenture in respect of the Corporation's $1,000,000,000 aggregate principal amount outstanding of Floating Rate Convertible Senior Debentures due August 13, 2033 (the Securities). The First Supplemental Indenture amends the Indenture dated as of August 13, 2003, between the Corporation and the Trustee, for the Securities. A copy of the First Supplemental Indenture is attached as Exhibit 99 and is incorporated herein by reference.

The Securities are convertible by holders into shares of our common stock on a contingent basis under the circumstances described in the indenture. Under the terms of the First Supplemental Indenture, the Corporation has irrevocably elected and agreed to pay only cash in lieu of common stock for the accreted principal amount of Securities in respect of its conversion obligations effective as of December 6, 2004. The Corporation previously had the right to elect to pay cash or common stock, or a combination of cash and common stock, for the accreted principal amount. The Corporation has retained the right, however, to elect to satisfy any and all conversion obligations in excess of the accreted principal amount of Securities in cash or common stock or a combination of cash and common stock.

As previously disclosed, the Emerging Issues Task Force of the Financial Accounting Standards Board recently reached a consensus position which could have required that the dilutive effect of contingently convertible debt instruments, such as the Securities, be reflected in the Corporation's calculation of diluted earnings per share for reporting periods ending after December 15, 2004. Previous accounting rules provided for the exclusion of the effect of contingently convertible instruments until the contingency had been satisfied. As a result of the amendment effected by the First Supplemental Indenture, the Corporation does not expect that the Securities will have an effect on the calculation of the Corporation's average shares outstanding until the market price for the Corporation's common stock exceeds the conversion price.
